Announcements

- South Carolina seceded on December 20, 1860.
 - South Carolina declared, “The guaranties of the Constitution will [when Lincoln is inaugurated] no longer exist; the equal rights of the States will be lost. The slaveholding States will no longer have the power of self-government, or self-protection, and the Federal Government will have become their enemy.”
 - A South Carolina unionist responded by stating, “South Carolina is too small for a republic, but too large for an insane asylum.”
- The Inspector General (IG) recruited more members for the Kentucky State Guard (KSG)

Oath

I do solemnly swear (or affirm, as the case may be), that I will support the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of this State, and be faithful and true to the Commonwealth of Kentucky so long as I continue a citizen thereof, and that I will faithfully execute, to the best of my abilities, the office of legislator according to law; and I do further solemnly swear (or affirm) that since the adoption of the present Constitution I, being a citizen of this State, have not fought a duel with deadly weapons within this State nor out of it, with a citizen of this State; nor have I sent or accepted a challenge to fight a duel with deadly weapons with a citizen of this State; nor have I acted as second in carrying a challenge, or aided or assisted any person thus offending, so help me God

Resolution to Take No Immediate Action Regarding the Institution of Slavery in Kentucky

The legislature recognizes the importance of the institution of slavery to the culture, society, and economy of the commonwealth of Kentucky at present.

[24-4]

Amendment to the Manumission Act

Slaves are henceforth and forever free.

[Dies for lack of a second.]
